

Skeena Health plagued by staff shortages

Staff shortages and budget cuts have plagued the Skeena Health District and efforts to establish an acceptable level of service for the area.

Lee Ellis, chairman of the Skeena Union Board of Health reports that the amount of funds available for community care service is only two to three per cent of the health budget, a figure which has dropped from five per cent in previous years.

In the board's annual report released recently a review was made of several new programs which have been introduced into the area in the past three years, among them home care nursing, improvements in an audiology program and a new dental hygiene program in the schools.

Ellis characterized the area as having a good level of health care although she feels the northern part of the province doesn't get sufficient consideration when provincial money is allocated.

She said the board is concerned with establishing a minimum level of service and staff for the area — some guidelines which can be used in the future.

Ellis is concerned because there is no staff for health education and said that the area needs a nutritionist to work in the area of preventative medicine.

Ellis's criticism of the board is that it is too unwieldy, covering an area which ranges from the Queen Charlotte Islands to Smithers and includes Stewart, Terrace and Kitimat.

The size of the area makes it difficult to recruit some staff. While there are funds available for a physiotherapist in the long-term program Skeena Health Centre has been unable to recruit one. The size of the area and the amount of travelling time demanded of some of the staff is one reason why the area has trouble with a high turnover rate.

Another big area of frustration for the board and staff involved in public health care is that more and more of a work load is being placed on the present staff. There have been no increases in the numbers of public health nurses in the district for six or seven years. As an example of the load the public health nurses have to deal with, is the fact that a nurse has only one half a day a week to devote to the 1,300 students at the high school in Kitimat.

"We'd like to see all our programs functioning the way they should. Sometimes we're just skimming the surface," says Ellis.

Ellis says that money could be invested more wisely

if it was used to keep people out of hospitals. With preventative medicine however, results are not immediate.

She says she would like to see some real guidelines coming from the provincial government, and some long-range goals defined.

"People are making a lot of noise about health costs," says Ellis. "One way to cut back is to keep people out of hospitals."

Ellis says that the district would like to do still more in the community. She says they haven't got their teeth into the mental health situation yet, and that they would like to see a home care service developed for Kitimat.

"Everything is spread very, very thin," said Ellis. "We're holding the line, we're not promoting good health."

McCarthy breaks Golden Rule

By MICHAEL HOWLETT
Herald Staff Writer

In a surprise decision, the Ministry of Human Resources has cut off $551 per month funding for the Golden Rule employment agency effective March 31. In operation in Terrace for nine and one-half years, and having received provincial aid for the past three, the fund refusal caught manager Juanita Hatton completely unaware.

"They've pulled the rug out from under me, without notice," said Hatton.

Hatton received a letter March 19 from Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy stating that the grant, renewable April 1, would not be renewed. Formerly, the agency had been receiving funding through the provincial secretary's office but had been notified on Jan. 29 by Evan Wolfe that funding would be transferred to human resources. This was "in keeping with the board's policy of having ministries with allied programs adjudicate grant applications and make funding recommendations."

The result was to cut off the Golden Rule's funding as human resources decided that "this ministry will not be funding your agency as the services it provides duplicate those already available."

The duplication involves the ministry's Individual Opportunity Plan program. However, this program has been in effect for under a year. According to Hatton "It's them who duplicate me. How could I duplicate something that is nine years younger than the Golden Rule?"

Although Hatton has had problems with government funding in the past, it is the lack of notice this time that most upsets her.

Hatton blames her troubles on government expansionist interference. "I started up without government assistance, I didn't wait around for them to tell me what to do. Anybody who has had to deal with manpower knows what a good service I provide."

Hatton has acquired numerous testimonials from satisfied customers and is receiving support in her efforts to retain funding from community groups such as the Rotary Club.

If help doesn't come soon though it will be the end of the Golden Rule. "If I don't get help pretty darn soon," said Hatton, "I'm just going to have to put an advertisement in the paper for one fully-equipped office to rent, including the help."

Chretien firm on decision

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Jean Chretien said today the federal government intends to push ahead with its constitutional package despite a Newfoundland Court of Appeal decision backing the provinces that oppose it.

"I'm surprised that somehow you will infer that prevent Parliament from acting," Chretien told reporters outside a cabinet committee meeting where the current Progressive Conservative constitutional filibuster was to be discussed.

"Of course we can pass legislation and the courts can look at our legislation after it's passed and we have not decided to refer the matter to the courts ourselves."

In a written decision handed down today, Chief Justice Arthur S. Mifflin and Justices Herbert B. Morgan and James R. Gushue answered "yes" to each of three questions posed by the six provinces which are fighting Prime Minister Trudeau's plan to have an amended British North America Act sent to Canada.

A fourth question put to the court by Newfoundland was not answered yes or no, but with definitions of various things that could happen.

The three questions which were given affirmative answers by the justices asked whether the provinces' rights and privileges and their relationship with the federal government would be affected, whether the federal government requires the consent of the provinces to amend the constitution and whether agreement of the provinces is required before any amendment is passed that would affect federal-provincial relations.

The Newfoundland question was whether 1949 terms of union could be altered without the consent of the Newfoundland legislature or a majority of the population.

Chretien said he was disappointed at the court decision backing the provinces opposing the federal constitutional package.

Two dead in boating mishap

A boating accident resulted in the deaths of two Kitimat residents Sunday near Collins Bay on the Douglas Channel. Dead are Charles Lesley Lewis, 44 and Carol Ann Turner, 43.

Lewis's body was found floating after the vessel, the Jumbo A, was sighted rammed into the point of Collins Bay Sunday.

After 20 minutes the boat hadn't docked and debris from the boat and the body of Lewis was spotted 50 feet from shore. On Monday, RCMP divers investigated the wreck and recovered the body of Turner.

RCMP say that the bow section of the 50 foot tug had been split open by striking shore and caused the vessel to sink immediately.

Public is confident in Parti Quebecois

Montreal La Presse: The results of a survey on Quebecers' voting intentions made by a Montreal-based polling company and La Presse a few days after the start of the election campaign indicate that the Parti Quebecois still has the public's confidence and that the Levesque government could win by a solid majority.

But it would be presumptuous to bet on a PQ victory on the basis of these results because the choice of 21 per cent of the respondents, undecided (12 per cent) or secretive (9 per cent), is not known.

The fact that they were mainly made up of ethnic voters, people aged over 55 years and pensioners suggests that the Liberals will win these unknown voters because a large number of Liberal supporters belong to those sub-groups.

So could the Union Nationale, in theory ... but I think this party has lost its attraction for voters.

According to the poll, 50 per cent of Quebecers believe that the PQ government has temporarily put aside sovereignty-association and 27 per cent believe the opposite. We may conclude that the referendum polarization plays a much smaller role than was expected a few months ago and that many federalist voters will judge the two main parties by the same criteria as in 1976, when it was a matter of choosing a good provincial government.

The poll also confirms a fact that will favor the Parti Quebecois — Premier Levesque's great popularity.

Ordinarily a popular figure who heads a government the population finds generally satisfactory acts as a trump card.

Knowing this, the Liberal leader will try to play on the polarization phenomenon by arguing that the referendum results logically call for the election of a federalist party which better reflects Quebecers' constitutional desires and will thus be better than the PQ at speaking effectively for Quebec on constitutional matters.

This won't be easy because people don't seem to be particularly preoccupied by the constitutional problem ... and they don't appear to be upset with the Levesque government's stance on the issue. — Marcel Adam (March 28)

America disgusted by its flying bullets

NEW YORK (Reuter) — "It's never ending," said a student as he stood in the drizzle and the darkness outside the hospital where President Reagan lay shot.

Across the country, Americans reacted with disgust but a sort of resignation to the fact that once again their lives and their history had been distorted by an assassin's bullet.

The assassination attempt halted the annual Academy Awards, closed the stock exchange and brought a wave of new demands for the gun controls Reagan has opposed so vehemently.

"It's just tragic," said the student, Tom Chandler, as he stood vigil with the crowd early today at Washington's George Washington University Hospital.

But in Washington, New York, Chicago and other cities, there was little of the outpouring of grief that followed the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 or that of his brother Robert in 1968.

Instead, Americans seemed resigned to yet another bruising self-examination of the violence that mars their political life. "I expected it," New York secretary Renata Johnson said. "I thought it was a matter of time."

"When we heard about Kennedy, we didn't believe it," said one Chicago woman. "Now we just accept it."

Hollywood, home to Ronald Reagan's first career as an actor, put off Monday night's Academy Award ceremonies as soon as news of the shooting reached the West Coast.

Reagan recorded a brief message for the presentations and the White House was deciding today whether it should be shown when the delayed ceremony takes place tonight.

Frank Sinatra, a close friend of the President who arranged his inauguration ball Jan. 20, cancelled his show at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas Monday night, along with shows due tonight and Wednesday night.

Bob Hope, another close friend, said Reagan had worn a bullet-proof jacket during last year's presidential race and "I wish Mr. Reagan had been wearing that jacket today."

Edward Kennedy, last brother of a family wasted by assassination, led Washington in condemning the murder attempt.

Listing his brothers and other victims of political violence, the Massachusetts senator called for prayers for the wounded and an end to violence and hatred.

The U.S. Senate adjourned, halting debate on Reagan's budget cuts, as soon as news of the shooting came in.

Purchasing agency may be boon

TORONTO (CP) — Setting up a joint purchasing agency for the federal, provincial and municipal governments could be a boon for Canadian manufacturers and suppliers, federal Supply Minister Jean-Jacques Blais said Monday.

Noting that the three levels of government now import "vast amounts" of equipment, he said that pooling their demand could justify setting up Canadian industry to provide the goods.

Government spending at all levels last year was more than $30 billion, Blais told a group of Canadian manufacturers.

He conceded that the notion of co-operative government buying sets some nerves tingling with fears of a federal takeover of power and a loss of control for the two other governments.

But he added:

"There is no intent on the part of the federal government to take over the procurement activities of other levels of government."

"I believe that any national co-operative purchasing agency must operate on a voluntary basis, and that the agency should respond only to requests for action. I believe we can identify areas where we can encourage the development of new Canadian sources."

The idea of a joint purchasing agency has been mentioned before by Blais and most recently by Industry Minister Larry Grossman of Ontario earlier this year.

Grossman, who with Blais toured a display of manufactured products bought by the government, said he thinks the concept is important, and he has received positive responses to the idea from other provinces.

Blais said he will discuss the proposal at a meeting of provincial industry ministers in Winnipeg next September, and hopes to see action being taken as soon as possible.

"We're looking now at identifying areas where we can work with the provinces," he said. "It could get started in perhaps one or two areas before we get into formal agreements."

Blais said the unified purchasing could support national and regional development.

"If, for instance, we could cover the combined needs of several governments for a given period for equipment which must be imported, Canadian entrepreneurs would have the incentive to design, develop and build the product in Canada."

Blais said the list of government purchases which now are imported is a huge one, ranging from word processors to diesel engines and medical supplies.

They all were areas for potential replacement of imports by Canadian-made goods.

"The demand by the federal government may not be sufficient to warrant setting up a Canadian source of supply. But if we and the provinces and the major municipalities pooled our demands, then that would be a different story."

Reagan opposed to gun control

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ronald Reagan, the seventh U.S. president this century to be a target of assassination attempts, has long opposed legal controls on possession of guns.

In his election campaign last year, he announced he was a member of the National Rifle Association — a lobby group against gun control — and had been for many years.

After his election, following the fatal shooting of singer John Lennon in New York City 16 weeks ago, he again rejected proposals for a federal gun-control law.

"I have never believed that," he said. "I believe in the kind of handgun legislation we had in California: If somebody commits a crime and carries a gun when he's doing it, you add five to 15 years to the prison sentence."

In the same December week, the president-elect's wife Nancy caused a stir by disclosing on an interview that she had kept "a tiny little gun" beside her bed, a gun her husband had taught her how to use.

On Monday, as Reagan lay wounded in a Washington hospital, presidential aide Lyn Nofziger was asked by a reporter if the shooting was likely to change Reagan's mind about gun control.

"The president can speak for himself about that," replied Nofziger.

Reagan's daughter Maureen told an interviewer later that something must be done to stop the violence that has killed two presidents this century, William McKinley and John F. Kennedy. But she was not specific.

John W. Hinckley, 25, was reported after his arrest Monday for the shooting of Reagan and three others to have been picked up before with handguns. A congressman said Hinckley had been picked up by police last Oct. 9 for carrying handguns in Nashville, Tenn., when former president Jimmy Carter was in town.

Records show Hinckley bought two .22-calibre pistols four days later in a pawn shop in Dallas, Tex.

But presidents and prominent people are not the only victims of gunfire in the United States, where guns are legally available in every state. Some states require permits, many do not.

Reagan's humour was not wounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only Ronald Reagan, of all the U.S. presidents who have been shot at, reacted with a quip.

While being wheeled into the operating room, Reagan told the doctors: "Please tell me you're all Republicans."

And when he came out of anesthesia, tubes in his mouth, he took a pad to write a note to the surgeons: "All in all, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

There is something wholly characteristic of Ronald Reagan in those scenes from America's brush with tragedy Monday.

He is the eternal optimist, this aw-shucks movie cowboy.

He was raised poor, in the factory towns of the Illinois prairie, but didn't know he was poor. His mother would beg the butcher for some calves' liver — "for the cat" — and make supper of it.

His father was an alcoholic. Reagan revered him nonetheless.

He couldn't afford to go to an expensive college. He enrolled at Eureka College near Peoria, Ill., "and fell head over heels in love with it."

All his life, Reagan has embodied the homespun ideals of small-town America. He wears a streak of good Rotarian cheer, he is delighted with small pleasures and at age 70, he remains capable of blushing.

Reagan couldn't land a Depression job in Chicago radio, so he went to Des Moines, Iowa, and in his head created a football game so convincingly that he was hired as a sports announcer.

He followed the Chicago Cubs to spring training on the West Coast and took a screen test.

In Knute Rockne, All American, he played a role he loved. He was the dying halfback, George Gipp, who inspired the coach to tell the team to "win one for the Gipper." Later he played a young man whose legs were needlessly amputated by a sadistic doctor. Coming out of ether, he looks down and asks his girlfriend, pitifully: "Where's the rest of me?"

Broker warns not to get cold feet

Investors should not liquidate their Canadian oil and gas holdings despite the industry's unsettling near-term outlook, says a Toronto brokerage house.

In a recent report, Moss, Lawson and Co. Ltd. conceded that the dispute between Ottawa and Alberta over the national energy policy doesn't create a comforting environment for investors in the petroleum sector.

But the investment firm said investors should retain their interests in companies that have strong enough financial positions to weather the dispute or those in a position to capitalize on the Canadianization features of the policy.

For the last decade, the firm said, the petroleum industry has been caught in several crossfires between the federal and provincial governments.

Each time, however, "the industry has been able to adapt to the new format and the more contentious issues between the warring parties were resolved to provide a more accommodating environment for the industry."

In fact, the firm said, the federal government has already made some modest concessions in the area of Canadian ownership of oil and gas companies.

It said the dispute over domestic oil and gas pricing "is likely to be resolved simply because failure to achieve a pricing agreement is so obviously disastrous for the country."

Without a pricing agreement, exploration and other industry expenditures will probably be curtailed.

Trading stops for Reagan

Trading was halted Monday on the Toronto Stock Exchange at 3:23 p.m. EST, following an assassination attempt on U.S. President Ronald Reagan.

Wall Street's stock exchanges halted all trading when word reached New York that Reagan had been wounded in Washington.

The New York and American stock exchanges stopped trading shortly after 3:15 p.m.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up about six points at 2:30 p.m., when word first reached Wall Street that shots had been fired at the president. It was not until after 3 p.m. that word came that Reagan had been shot and was safe. At the time of the trading halt, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 2.71 points at 992.07.

A spokesman for the New York exchange said it was the first time trading had been halted because of a news event since the market was closed Jan. 25, 1973, for the funeral of former president Lyndon Johnson.

In Toronto the market was down slightly in moderate trading.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar and the Tokyo stock exchange average both fell sharply at the openings on Tokyo markets on news of the assassination attempt on Reagan, dealers said.

In another development Monday, Statistics Canada said preliminary estimates indicate major industries increased their output by 0.2 per cent in January from December.

The January growth in real domestic product originated almost entirely among service-producing industries, up 0.7 per cent, while goods-producing industries—led by the auto industry—declined 0.6 per cent. The index, with a base year of 1976 equalling 100 was 141.3 in January up from 141.1 in December.

The major growth areas for the month were trade, finance, insurance and real estate services, forestry and mining. In trade, growth was widespread among both wholesaling and retailing establishments, especially in food, clothing, transportation equipment, health-care items, and household furnishings.

Following two previous months of no growth, forestry operations picked up substantially in January advancing to the highest output level since March, 1990.

Increased production of crude petroleum, natural gas, potash, and iron ore accounted for the gain in mining.

The most significant area of weakness during the month was in motor vehicles, off about 25 per cent from the previous high level recorded in December.

Production of passenger cars destined for other countries showed a marked decline, as did production of vehicles for the domestic market.

Coupled with this severe output decline was a substantial rise in the number of layoffs issued in the auto industry for the month of January compared with December, 1990.

Salmon shortage examined

VANCOUVER (CP)—A dramatic and unexplained drop in coho salmon production in Oregon has left Canadian fisheries experts sharply divided on whether the problem will occur in B.C. While millions of dollars are being spent on new B.C. fish hatcheries, the Oregon government has built a building them because the state's production of coho has fallen sharply in the past five years.

Worried state fisheries biologists are trying to find out why things went wrong and their investigations include looking for genetic changes in hatchery-produced fish to fluctuations in the nutrient content of the ocean.

"I feel there is reason for concern in B.C.," Dr. Harry Wagner, an Oregon fish and wildlife department official, said here Sunday. "I think we may have underestimated the complexity of these fish and they are more attuned to their particular environment than we first thought."

A federal fisheries biologist stationed in B.C., who declined to be identified, said the Oregon discovery is significant for the province. But Dr. Keith Sanderson, the department's chief of enhancement operations, said B.C. hatcheries have exceeded expectations, and that Oregon coastal conditions are different than those in B.C.

Coho production in the Columbia River and Oregon coastal streams was mainly natural before 1960. But improved hatchery techniques, including better diet and disease control, led to a greatly expanded hatchery program.

Initial results were spectacular but by the late 1960s the catch of adult coho began fluctuating, even though the hatcheries were releasing more young salmon.

Polish crisis is over

WARSAW (AP)—Another Polish crisis has ended, with the government promising to punish those responsible for the beating of union leader Solidarity labor alliance calling off a general strike planned for today.

"Common sense and moderation have won," said Solidarity leader Lech Walesa after he and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski negotiated an agreement Monday.

Walesa said he was satisfied with "70 per cent of the agreement."

"Tomorrow we go to work," said Andrzej Gwiazda, No. 2 man in the 10-million-member Solidarity.

Resolution of the crisis ended another threat of Soviet military intervention that brought new warnings from the U.S. and the West. European allies. The annual spring manoeuvres of Soviet, Polish and East German forces, under way since March 20 and reported to have been extended, put pressure on the Polish workers, were expected to end soon.

The latest and possibly the most serious dispute between Solidarity and Poland's Communist party resulted from the government's refusal to use force since the independent labor movement won legalization during the nationwide strike wave last summer.

On March 19, police forcibly evicted 23 union leaders who refused to leave a government meeting in Bydgoszcz, an industrial city 270 kilometres northwest of Warsaw, following an inconclusive discussion of a petition by farmers demanding permission to form a union.

Knight called brilliant

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Knight can be as brilliant and as brilliant as he is, and he is also, indisputably, a brilliant basketball coach.

On a day marred by the shock and sadness of the shooting of President Ronald Reagan, when serious consideration was given to postponing the game in reference to the tragedy, Knight guided Indiana Hoosiers to U.S. college basketball's NCAA title Monday night with a marvelously orchestrated 63-50 victory over North Carolina. Isaiah Thomas, the Hoosiers' gifted sophomore point guard, was voted the outstanding player of the tournament after scoring 19 of his 23 points in the second half.

After North Carolina jumped in front 16-9 in the first 10 minutes, Knight made the key strategic move of the game. He switched 6-foot-6 swingman Randy Wittman from guard to forward to replace the foul-plagued Ted Kitchel and brought guard Jim Thomas off the bench — going with a three-guard offence and putting a Jim Thomas on North Carolina scoring star Al Wood.

"Carolina had a chance to take us out of the game, but our kids did a heck of a job hanging in," said Knight.

"Maybe it was a bad thing to get Kitchel in foul trouble," said assistant Carolina coach Dean Smith, who has reached the final four six times and the championship game three times in his 20 years at Chapel Hill, N.C. "In comes Jim Thomas and he plays like he should be on the all-tournament team."

The Hoosiers started the second half with an 8-2 spurt that included a pair of steals and layups by the cat-quick Isaiah Thomas. That made it 35-28 and the North Carolina collapse was only a matter of time.

With Jim Thomas stalking Wood all over the floor, the Tar Heels could manage just eight points in the first 10 minutes of the second half.

By now it was 45-34 and Indiana, 26-9, was on its way toward becoming the losingest champion in tournament history.

"That's a distinction we don't mind," said Knight.

Terrace Bantams had excellent showing

The Terrace Inland Kenworth Bantams came up with an excellent showing at the B.C. Tier One Bantam Minor Hockey Championships at Salmon Arm last week.

The 13 and 14-year-old youngsters placed second overall in the eight-team, round-robin series against the best in the province. Losses to the eventual winners from Richmond's Seafair Winter Club and to Kamloops kept Terrace players out of first place.

Most of the Terrace players were first-year Bantams and will have another crack at the title next season.

Seafair won it with an undefeated seven-win, no-loss record. Terrace placed second with five wins and two losses. Trail and Kamloops finished tied for third with four wins, two losses and a tie. They were followed by Saanich, Prince George, Salmon Arm and Cranbrook.

Terrace won its first three games rather handily. Trevor Hendry fired a hat trick and Terry Zaporzan added a pair in their opening game 8-3 victory over Trail. Dale Kushner, Mario Desjardins and David Kawinsky added singles. Terrace grabbed period leads of 3-1 and 6-1, and outshot their opponents 40-19.

Terrace then downed Prince George 11-3. The first period resulted in Prince George holding a 1-0 lead going into the second stanza.

Terrace moved ahead 4-1 after the second and continued its scoring assault in the final 20 minutes. Prince George scored its final two goals with two minutes to go. Kushner and Jeff Sharples each scored twice while singles went to Zaporzan, Hendry, Desjardins, McGhee, Cox, Lindstrom and Kawinsky. Terrace outshot Prince George 41-18.

Game three against Saanich resulted in a relatively easy 7-1 victory over Saanich although the Saanich goalie turned in a super performance. Kushner and Hendry had two-goal efforts while Desjardins, Philpott and Badge counted one each. Zaporzan counted three assists while Furness helped out on two goals.

Terrace blasted 49 shots on goal while Saanich managed only 18 shots.

By the start of game four, Terrace had run their season record against Bantam opponents to 39 straight victories.

The game started in-momentarily enough with Terrace grabbing a 1-0 first period lead. The boys boosted that to 4-0 in the second period before Kamloops rapped home 11 straight goals. Terrace was out-shot 30-15. Zaporzan, Kawinsky, Desjardins and Kushner scored for Terrace.

Richmond Seafairs then beat Terrace 7-5 in the fifth game and at that stage was the only unbeaten team left. Seafair took a 3-1 first-period lead and increased that to 5-2 after two periods. Terrace put on a surge in the last period but it was too little, too late. Terrace out-shot Seafair 51-40, but again ran into hot goaltending. Hendry fired two goals while Zaporzan, Desjardins and Poeschek got the others.

Terrace got back on track in their sixth game on day four. They didn't show any of the disappointment from losing two the previous day as they went out and pounded Salmon Arm 8-1 after running up period leads of 3-0 and 6-0. Zaporzan got a hat trick to lead the way while Lambert scored a pair of goals. Wayne Cox, Dave Kawinsky and Richard Lindstrom also scored. Terrace outshot Salmon Arm 51-25.

On the final day, Terrace beat Cranbrook 7-5. Cranbrook was up for it and after 20 minutes it was tied 1-1. Cranbrook then grabbed a 4-3 lead in the second period, but Terrace came back to outscore their opponents 3-1 in the last period. Terrace had outshot Cranbrook 45-16. Kushner came up with a three-goal effort. Singles were scored by Zaporzan, Hendry, Lambert and McGhee.

That gave Terrace a record of five wins and two losses and second place in the overall standings.

White Sox have a clean new look

First, Ron LeFlore, then, Caron Fisk. Now, Greg Luzinski. Any resemblance between this year's Chicago White Sox and last year's club is purely coincidental.

"As of today, I think the rest of the American League West has to consider us seriously," Eddie Einhorn, Chicago's new president, said Monday after the White Sox purchased slugger Luzinski from Philadelphia Phillies for an undisclosed amount of money. "Now we have the power we didn't have."

The sale of the 30-year-old Luzinski climaxed days of rumors he would be leaving the World Series-champion Phillies, especially since they acquired Atlanta outfielder Gary Matthews last week.

The Phillies' first selection in the June 1968 draft, Luzinski was the Phillies' regular left fielder from 1972 until he lost his job to rookie Lonnie Smith last season. In his nine-year career, Luzinski compiled a .281 batting average with 223 home runs and 811 RBIs.

The White Sox' new-found power was missing Monday. Instead, home runs by Cincinnati's George Foster and rookie Dave Van Gorder keyed a 12-hit attack and backed the six-hit pitching of Mario St. Doug Bair and Tom Hume as the Reds handed the Sox an 8-3 exhibition defeat.

In another deal, Los Angeles Dodgers, seeking outfield insurance if Reggie Smith has not recovered from shoulder surgery, acquired Ken Landreaux from Minnesota Twins for rookie third baseman Mickey Hatcher and two minor leaguers. Landreaux batted .305 in 1979 and .281 last season, when his 31-game hitting streak was the longest in the majors.

Rob Wilfong collected four singles for Minnesota and Glenn Adams drove in four runs but the Twins lost to Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 as Mike Easter paced a 17-hit attack with two home runs and a double.

Despite home runs by Pedro Guerrero and Steve Garvey, the Dodgers bowed to New York Yankees 6-4 as Bucky Dent's two-run homer and a two-run triple by Dave Winfield keyed a five-run, sixth-inning rally.

Jerry Murphy drove in four runs, three with a seventh-inning homer, as San Diego Padres beat Oakland A's 11-5 and Ted Simmons knocked in three runs with a single and homer and Larry Hise also homered as Milwaukee Brewers nipped Chicago Cubs 9-8.

Jerry White had five hits, including a two-run homer in the 10th inning, as Montreal Expos defeated Kansas City Royals 8-6. The Expos rallied with six runs off Renie Martin to tie it in the ninth, three on a triple by White.

Bowling spiel is all ready

Sixty-four teams are expected to participate in the third leg of a Prince Rupert, Kitimat and Terrace bowl-a-spiel in Kitimat April 3 to 5.

Bowling for $3,500 in prize money will go on round the clock on the weekend. A dance is planned for Saturday night from 7 to 2 a.m.

A team made up of Kitimat and Terrace bowlers will be attending the Carling O'Keefe Provincial Championships in Cranbrook Easter weekend as representatives from this zone.

Loggers bonspiel is set

The Easter Loggers Bonspiel, involving up to 64 rinks, will take place at the Terrace Curling Club April 17 to 19.

One of the big spiels for men in the Northwest, the draw will include teams from all over the region. Rinks from Quesnel and Prince George right out to Prince Rupert will attend.

Alouettes owned by Vancouver millionaire

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver millionaire Nelson Skalbania officially added a fourth professional sports franchise to his holdings Monday when Canadian Football League teams unanimously approved his purchase of Montreal Alouettes from Sam Berger.

Approval came during an hour-long telephone conference call involving representatives of the board of governors from the nine CFL clubs, CFL commissioner

Jake Gaudaur and league secretary Greg Fulton. In a prepared statement, Gaudaur said the ownership transfer was approved, "subject to receipt by the league of certain covenants recommended by the commissioner."

Skalbania, 42, who also owns Calgary Flames of the National Hockey League, Calgary Boomers of the North American Soccer League and Vancouver Canadians of baseball's

Pacific Coast League, is reported to have paid $2.4 million for the club, as well as picking up an additional $600,000 in debts. Skalbania's purchase of 50 per cent of the Alouettes was rejected by the league in February when the league questioned who would speak for the club under the 50-50 arrangement. Soon after, Berger, 51, announced he had agreed to sell the remaining half to Skalbania.

One concern expressed by several clubs was a lack of local ownership should Skalbania acquire the team. However, Gaudaur said Skalbania had assured team officials that "it was his intention to involve Quebecers in an ownership and/or advisory capacity."

"And while not a condition of approving the transfer, the league will encourage such an intention," Gaudaur added. Gaudaur said team officials also discussed a bid by a Montreal group, headed by Bill Molson and Bernard Lamarre, to buy the club. That offer, made last week, is said to have included instalments of $1.2 million and $501,000, as well as $1 on each ticket sold in excess of 350,000 in each of the next 10 seasons.

That bid apparently also included assumption of certain club debts. "Attention was paid to the opinion of the commissioner and certain clubs as to the importance of local ownership and the information that a group headed by Mr. Molson had revised upward an earlier offer to acquire the club was discussed," the statement said.

"However, Mr. Sam Berger made it clear to the meeting that he was not prepared to accept the revised offer and the league felt the franchise should not be left in a suspended state any longer at this time of the year."

Will success spoil Phillies

Will success spoil Philadelphia Phillies?

After almost a century of failure, the Phillies won their first World Series championship in 1980, mainly on the strength of brilliant seasons by pitcher Steve Carlton and third baseman Mike Schmidt.

At the age of 35, Carlton (24-9) led baseball's National League with 24 victories and 286 strikeouts in 304 innings, ranked second in earned-run average (2.34) and captured the Cy Young Award.

Meanwhile, MVP Schmidt led the majors with 48 home runs and topped the league with 121 runs batted in 342 total bases and a .624 slugging percentage.

The modern-day Phillies are far removed from the 1900 Whiz Kids. Carlton and relief ace Tug McGraw are 33, catcher Bob Boone 33, first baseman Pete Rose 30, shortstop Larry Bowa 35, and left fielder Greg Luzinski is gone to Chicago White Sox.

Lonnie Smith, who replaced Luzinski more and more as the season progressed, is the only regular under 30, and that includes second baseman Manny Trillo, centre fielder Garry Maddox and right fielder Bake McBride, along with Schmidt and Matthews. The speedy, aggressive Smith gave the Phillies a new dimension by stealing 33 bases in only 100 games.

Carlton and Dick Ruthven (17-10) are a solid left-right punch and Marty Bystrom (5-0) was an impressive rookie in September.

Boone, a superb defensive catcher, hopes to rebound from an off-year with the bat and Rose, who failed to bat 300 for only the second time in the last 16 years, needs just 74 hits to break Stan Musial's National League record.

The key to Philadelphia's season probably will be how much injured pitchers Larry Christenson and Nino Espinoza can contribute. "We can win again, and I think we will," says Green. In 1979, Montreal Expos wound up two games behind Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL East. Last year, they won five fewer games, but came within one of the Phillies in another runner-up finish.

The experience of consecutive pennant races going down to the last weekend of the season will definitely help this club in the late stages of 1981, says manager Dick Williams.

He lists two problems. The first is the void in left field created when Ron Leflore opted for free agency and jumped to the White Sox. The other, however, is no more serious than finding a backup for workhorse catcher Gary Carter.

Rookie Tim Lincecum, who stole 77 bases in 106 games as a second baseman in the American Association and five more in 15 games with the Expos, will get a shot at replacing Leflore, who led the NL by swiping 97 in 139 games.

If Raines flops, Warren Cromartie will return to left field after a year at first base and Willie Montanez will be the regular first baseman. Raines, second baseman Rodney Scott (63 steals) and centre fielder Andre Dawson (34) give the Expos loads of speed in front of Carter and the rest of the power people — right fielder Ellis Valentine, third baseman Larry Parrish and Cromartie. Chris Speier will again be the shortstop.

The pitching staff is young and talented. Steve Rogers and Scott Sanderson were 16-game winners and Bill Gullickson is on the verge of stardom. A veteran bullpen includes Woodie Fryman, Stan Bahnsen and Elias Sosa.

One thing is sure — 1980 wasn't nearly as much fun as 1979, says Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner. That's because the Pirates skidded from the World Series championship to a third-place finish.

Many of the Bucs big guns played with injuries or were sidelined — right fielder Dave Parker, first baseman Willie Stargell, centre fielder Omar Moreno (96 steals), third baseman Bill Madlock, second baseman Phil Garner, first baseman outfielder Bill Robinson, pitcher Don Robinson.

Comebacks are essential from them, as well as left-hander John Candelaria and relief ace Kent Tekulve, who slumped. All the injuries gave left fielder Mike Easler (.338, 21 homers) a chance to reach stardom.

Veteran Jim Bibby (19-6) is the ace of the pitching staff, but the 6-foot-5 fastballer is 38. Candelaria, Don Robinson and Rick Rhoden also will be in the rotation, with Grant Jackson, Enrique Romo and newcomer Victor Cruz joining Tekulve in a bullpen which Tanner considers the best in the world.

Any similarity between the 1980 and 1981 St. Louis Cardinals is purely coincidental. Manager Whitey Herzog's housecleaning disposed of Ted Simmons, Pete Vuckovich, Rolfe Fingers, Ken Reitz and Leon Durham.

The starting eight features plenty of hitting, speed and defence. It has, free agent Darrell Porter behind the plate, an infield of Keith Hernandez, Tom Herr, Garry Templeton and Ken Oberkell, with Sixto Lezcano, Tony Scott and George Hendrick in the outfield.

To cure his pitching problems, Herzog traded for Bruce Sutter, baseball's premier reliever. Starters Bob Forsch, Larry Sorensen and Silvio Martinez must produce big years.

Outfielder Dave Kingman is back in New York to slug balls out of the park, and first baseman Rusty Staub returned as a free agent. Except for centre fielder Lee Mazzilli, however, the rest of the lineup is punchless. Rookie outfielder Mookie Wilson's adds speed.

The fine young Neil Allen-Jeff Reardon bullpen won't get a chance to save many games unless starters Craig Swan, Pat Zachry and Randy Jones are over their arm miseries. Rookie Tim Lincecum has been called the next Tom Seaver.

Having finished last with Sutter and Kingman, Chicago Cubs decided to try it without them. The new-look Cubs hope to blend newcomers Steve Henderson and Leon Durham in the outfield and third baseman Ken Reitz with NL batting king Bill Buckner at first base, shortstop Ivan DeJesus and pitcher Rick Reuschel. Lefty Ken Kravec, acquired last week from the crosstown White Sox, should help.

ALL ABOUT PEOPLE

French film and stage star Danielle Darrieux will not be appearing at the Stratford Festival this season as earlier announced.

Festival officials announced that Darrieux, scheduled to star opposite William Hatt in The Visit, has instead accepted an offer of a two-year contract for a play in France.

The actress had not signed a contract with the festival for the play — scheduled for a mid-August opening — although her agent had sent a letter of agreement, the officials said. Darrieux's name and picture have been used in festival ads.

Producer Muriel Sherrin said she is looking for an actress with the same international stature to replace Darrieux.

If fencing strikes you as an unfriendly sport, you'd be hardpressed to present a convincing argument to Bob and Sylvia Edgington of Winnipeg. They met, courted and married at fencing tournaments.

Bob, a firefighter from Regina, and Sylvia, a political science professor at the University of Manitoba, had a "whirlwind courtship," managing to see each other only at tournaments after they met at a Saskatoon competition.

Bob proposed at the Manitoba provincial open tournament and they were married two tournaments later at the Winnipeg Golden Boy on April 29, 1978.

A commissioner of oaths performed the marriage ceremony in a gymnasium for the couple dressed in the fencing costume of white breeches and tunic. "Oh, it was very romantic," said Sylvia. "I had red flowers with my white fencing suit."

After the ceremony, they plunged into competition in the tournament.

Barney Miller fans, take heart.

Producer Danny Arnold apparently changed his mind after announcing plans to cancel Barney Miller at the end of the current season and the program will return for an eighth year on television this fall, the ABC network said.

Arnold, who couldn't be reached for comment, was reported to have told the cast last week that the current season would be the last for the series, which has slipped in the ratings from its once-solid position among the top 20 programs in prime time.

ABC did not announce the planned cancellation, although the spokesman said Arnold's reported decision was common knowledge at network headquarters. His change of mind apparently came during the weekend.

The real problem in America, says television producer Norman Lear, is an obsession with making quick profits.

Attacking Rev. Jerry Falwell and his moral majority for offering "simplistic problems to our most complex problems," Lear blamed "the decline in public morality and ethics" on "American leadership's fixation with what has become known as the bottom line."

Lear, speaking at Northeastern University in Boston, Mass., after accepting an award for defending civil liberties, said: "Leadership everywhere seems all too ready to sell the future short for a moment of success."

A $25,000 award for artistic excellence will bring Swedish film-maker Ingmar Bergman to Dallas for his first public appearance in the United States.

The first Meadows award, presented by Southern Methodist University, will be presented annually to an international artist for distinguished contributions to the creative or performing arts.

Bergman is to appear at four public seminars and the awards ceremony April 20 to 22, said a university spokesman.

Bergman has visited the U.S. twice before on personal or business trips, the spokesman added.

In Britain the hot haircut may be the Lady Di, but in Washington it's the Stockman, in imitation of the longish mane of budget director David Stockman.

A Washington hair stylist says his customers have started asking for the Stockman style — straight hair, parted on the right and falling slightly over the ears. "I guess they want to blend in with the administration," said the hair stylist.

B.C. doctors may bill patients on Wednesday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many British Columbia doctors are expected to dispense bills as well as prescriptions to patients Wednesday unless a sudden settlement is reached with the provincial government on fee schedules.

The bitter medicine follows months of haggling between the province's 3,700 fee-for-service doctors and the B.C. Medical Services Commission, accompanied by an emotion-stirring controversy over whether the dispute will wreck government-funded medicare.

With an unhealthy gap between doctors and government, the B.C. Medical Association proposes to take the road of doctors in eight other provinces and introduce so-called balance billing of patients — a veiled term that means the sick pay the difference between what doctors want and what the government is prepared to pay.

Only Quebec will now not have extra billing of patients, although federal Health Minister Monique Bégin has called for a ban against the practice, following the recommendation of former Supreme Court Justice Emmett Hall in a royal commission report last year.

Led by a feisty Penticton ear, nose and throat specialist, Dr. Alex Mandeville, B.C. doctors have spurned an average 15.2-per-cent raise and held to demands for a total 41-per-cent raise.

The government said in recent newspaper ads that the average doctor would get a raise of $14,240 a year based on its offer. By comparison, the average industrial wage in B.C. in December was $37.34 a week, or about $19,340 annually.

Health Minister Jim Nielsen, who takes the heat in government for the negotiations, has threatened legislation against extra billing as a final resort. A bill has been prepared and could be passed swiftly if needed, Nielsen says.

Doctors responded in record numbers to a vote on the government's offer, with 90 per cent casting ballots.

Meanwhile, the impasse has brought a rush of patients to doctors' offices trying to beat the April 1 deadline, a flurry of statements opposing extra billing and a flood of letters to newspapers. Although the great majority of letters are against extra billing, blame is placed almost equally on doctors and government for the dispute.

Mandeville concedes the process will be a nuisance for many doctors but expects the proportion of those who charge above the government-funded level will be somewhat higher in B.C.

Mandeville, who has piloted the doctors' revolt in B.C. after several years of rising discontent, says the furor over extra billing is exaggerated. The government has used scare tactics in its negotiating stance as a way of building public support, he says.

"We're not talking about much money," he says. "About $5.50 for an office visit. Smokers spend more a week on cigarettes than that."

Reagan was sixth to be shot at President Reagan is the sixth U.S. president in this century who was the target of an assassination attempt. Two of the six, William McKinley and John F. Kennedy, were killed.

The shots fired at Reagan on Monday marked the first assassination attacks since two women tried to shoot President Ford in separate incidents in northern California in September 1975.

Earlier in the century, on Sept. 6, 1901, McKinley was shot during an appearance in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later. The man convicted of the crime was hanged a month later.

On Oct. 12, 1914, a man in Milwaukee shot and seriously wounded former president Theodore Roosevelt and on Nov. 1, 1963, two men identified as members of a Puerto Rican nationalist movement tried to shoot their way into Blair House in Washington, D.C., in an attempt to kill President Truman.

Kennedy was killed in November 1963 in Dallas. Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested for the crime but was shot and killed by Jack Ruby before he could be tried. Ruby died while legal proceedings were still pending in the Oswald shooting.

The first attempt against Ford came in Sacramento, Calif., on Sept. 5 as Ford was walking to the state Capitol for an address to the legislature. As Ford shook hands with a crowd that lined his route, Lynette Alice (Squeaky) Fromme, 26, a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, pulled out a Colt .45-calibre semi-automatic pistol and pointed it at the president. A Secret Service agent grabbed Fromme's hand. The gun did not go off and the president was not hurt.

Barely two weeks later, on Monday Sept. 22, as Ford walked to his limousine as he left the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, a single shot rang out. The gun was deflected and the bullet missed.

Sara Jane Moore, 45, who was both a radical and an FBI informant, was arrested. It was disclosed later that Moore had called San Francisco police on Saturday Sept. 20, and warned them that she might "test the system" at Stanford University where Ford was scheduled to speak on the Sunday.

Police arrested Moore on Sunday afternoon, took away her .44-calibre pistol and released her.

Moore pleaded guilty to trying to kill Ford and is serving a life sentence at the Federal correctional institution at Alderson, W.Va.

Cleaning lady confirmed Reagan shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It's the president!" shouted one of the people in the emergency room at George Washington Hospital.

Then came the call over the hospital speaker system: "Trauma unit to emergency room. Stat... We need the cardiologist, the cardiologist team."

Robert Guarasci, 18, a student from Fort Lee, N.J., who happened to be at the hospital when President Reagan arrived with a gunshot wound Monday, said a cleaning lady confirmed the president was there. "Yes, but you're not supposed to tell anybody," he quoted her as replying to his question.

Guarasci said he saw the president's wife, Nancy, walking beside the stretcher when the president was taken from the emergency room.

"She looked very concerned," he said.

Attracted by sirens and commotion surrounding the president's arrival, Guarasci said he ran to the emergency room and arrived two or three minutes after Reagan. Guarasci said he was told by people who were there earlier than Reagan was "brought in bodily," but was not on a stretcher.

He said he overheard medical personnel in the room exclaiming: "It's the president! It's the president!" and asked a cleaning woman whether it was true.

Guarasci said he saw two other people brought into the hospital, including a portly, balding man, whose description resembled that of White House press secretary James Brady. He said the man had what appeared to be a red or bloody patch above his eyebrow. Brady was reported to have been shot in the forehead.

Guarasci said Reagan arrived at the hospital at about 2:35 p.m. EST and was in the emergency room — in a small room, out of sight — until 3:20 p.m.

About 35 people, most of them in business suits, milled about the emergency room among the patients as the president was treated, he said.

When the president was taken from the room, Guarasci said, "I noticed some things hanging from the stretcher" but he could not determine whether it was an intravenous unit.

He said he couldn't see Reagan, because of covering over him, but he recognized Mrs. Reagan. "I couldn't detect any blood," he said.

Canada plans an anti-terrorist squad

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is setting up an anti-terrorist squad for the Ottawa summit conference in July and plans close consultations with Washington on security following the shooting of U.S. President Ronald Reagan, Solicitor-General Robert Kaplan said Monday.

Kaplan also told reporters there had been death threats against Reagan during the president's two-day visit to Canada March 10-11. But the RCMP did not feel these threats "justified reducing the openness" of the president to the public.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who was in Montreal on private business when informed of the incident, issued a statement saying he had reacted "with a sense of deep distress and shock."

"My thoughts and prayers are with you and Mrs. Reagan and with the three men who were also wounded in this insane assault," Trudeau said in the statement. "May God be with you and grant you all a speedy recovery."

External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan and Opposition Leader Joe Clark expressed shock at the shooting and MPs clustered around television sets in Commons lobbies to view on-the-spot reports. The president was in surgery and described as in stable condition.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, said: "I extend to President Reagan and those injured today in the tragic assassination attempt my deepest sympathy and my expression of hope that they will undergo a speedy and complete recovery."

Meantime, the RCMP said there's no evidence so far that the man arrested at the scene of the shooting, John W. Hinckley, 25, of Evergreen, Col., was in Canada at the time of Reagan's visit. Security officers did not spot the suspect in film footages of crowds.

Kaplan said: "We will be developing a squad basically drawn from national defence for dealing with terrorist incidents."

The squad would be in operation for the July 20-21 conference of seven Western industrialized countries but would develop further later.

Members of the squad would be specially trained for anti-terrorist activities but would have other duties as well. Kaplan refused to say what the squad's budget will be or how many persons would be named to the unit.

"I think we have to reflect carefully on what did happen and our security service will discuss it with the secret service (in the U.S.)," Kaplan said.

There would be talks about whether there could be the kind of "face-to-face contact" with people that the president had here during his visit.

Reagan and Trudeau "wanted a very open visit where they would be seen in public and, in effect, have a good contact with the Canadian people."

Canada could throw such a tight security ring around the visiting heads of state at the July summit that they would not be seen by the public at all, the solicitor-general said.

"That's certainly not the way Canadian tradition has been. We have had a lot of public access."

"One of the great things in our country is that even with threats of terrorism and incidents of it, we are a very open country where visitors feel safe."

Despite threats against Reagan, Canadian security services felt "perfectly safe" in allowing the president's appearances at open events on Parliament Hill and at the National Arts Centre while the U.S. leader was here.

Kaplan said he had discussed the Reagan shooting with the security service immediately after hearing about it in the Commons and had decided not to take "any extra precautions" for Trudeau or other Canadian government leaders.

Defence Minister Gilles Lamontagne has said the government is consulting the British anti-terrorist squad, SAS, for advice on fighting terrorism.

Those making up the Canadian anti-terrorist group "will perform other duties but they will be specially tasked and trained" to counter assaults and kidnappings, Kaplan said.

The cabinet has made decisions on how much should be spent on the squad and how many should be selected for the unit "but it isn't the sort of information to disclose."

Preliminary plans for the July summit indicate the government leaders, including Reagan, will have little public exposure. They will be taken almost immediately after they arrive to Chateau Montebello, Montebello, Que., for the first day of the conference and later will be brought back to Parliament Hill by helicopter for the second day.

Former solicitor-general Allan Lawrence said his reaction was "Thank God it didn't happen here."

Canadian security services have consistently shown they can handle security for visiting heads of government, he said.

Flora MacDonald called the shooting a tragedy and said "I'm appalled by the fact that this could happen."

MacGuigan said security and terrorism may very well be items on the agenda of the July summit.

Arthur Bremer, the man who shot Alabama governor George Wallace, was seen in Ottawa during the 1972 visit of former president Richard Nixon. One month later, Bremer shot and crippled Wallace.

There was some evidence Bremer wanted to assassinate Nixon, but found security here too tight.

A year earlier, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was grabbed about the throat by a disgruntled Hungarian refugee on Parliament Hill. The astonished Kosygin was forced to his knees before police could drag the refugee away.

The Toronto Stock Exchange closed soon after the Reagan shooting so that there was no immediate impact on trading.

Washington wants reduction in public TV spending

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill McCarter, along with everyone else in public TV, is well aware that the federal government would like to end, or at least sharply reduce, its commitment to non-commercial broadcasting. Unlike most of his colleagues, the president of Chicago's WTTW thinks it's good for the system.

"It's like someone gave us a whip across the face," public broadcasting will probably never again be supported as it has been by the federal government. Now, for the first time, we'll have some enlightened discussion on just how to keep this system strong."

McCarter, after a decade at WTTW, knows full well there are those in public television who consider transformation to a system reliant on some sort of commercial structure unthinkable, in fact, he insists the system remain non-profit and that the tradition of programming uninterrupted by commercials be maintained.

"We've been a maverick in trying to nudge the system away from this holier-than-thou, low-yield philosophy toward a system where we can stand on our own feet," he says. "Now, a lot is happening behind the scenes. I expect in the next six months, we'll see some kind of summit on the subject."

Maverick perhaps, though enthusiast might be a better way to describe the 51-year-old McCarter, whose career in broadcasting began in the production end of the business. And if he needs an endorsement, the WTTW story should be sufficient.

Research last May by the A. C. Nielsen Co. ranked the Chicago station No. 1 in the Public Broadcasting Service network in reaching its audience.

The survey showed 55 per cent of the potential audience actually watched WTTW at some time during the week, compared with 41 per cent for the station in the largest market, New York's WNET. By January, WTTW's penetration had increased to 64 per cent.

Rather recently, WTTW has become an important producing station for the non-commercial network.

With a rigid aversion to deficit spending, WTTW has maintained solid financial footing while the station's budget — now about $12 million — increases at a rate of $1 million a year.

McCarter beams when he talks about the station's relationship with the city and its people. To mark WTTW's 25th anniversary, the city lined Michigan Avenue with huge banners proclaiming the occasion.

From a programming standpoint, McCarter espouses a rather simple philosophy: "You can't sit back and ride some feed off of the satellite."

We're doing it now:
We're stopping the leak with the UI
Report on Hirings.

This program stops abuse.

Not everyone who continues to receive unemployment insurance after starting a new job is cheating. They may still be entitled to some benefits. Or sometimes they've made an honest mistake. Unfortunately, a great deal of money has been wrongly paid out in the past to people who don't report a new job. Now our Report on Hirings program is putting an effective halt to this, thanks to employers who participate. Soon, people getting UI will know they must tell us that they've found work and report all their earnings.

Big and small companies are helping us succeed.

Together, the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission and employers are detecting potential overpayments. With Report on Hirings, employers give us the starting date and Social Insurance Number for each new employee or send extracts from computer payroll tapes. We cross-check this information with the Social Insurance Numbers of people getting UI. When the system detects people wrongly collecting benefits, we investigate and a penalty or prosecution may follow. But our job is not to penalize or prosecute the people. It's to pay benefits to people who should get them - no more and no less.
